The awards were announced during the NACIO Annual Conference in Nashville.

"Each year, we spotlight outstanding communications work that is meaningful in our communities," said NACIO President Lori Letzring. "This year, our entries raised the bar for public communications even higher."

There were four department logos created in 2017 and submitted: Bowden Golf Course, Facilities Management, Parks & Beautification, and Solid Waste.

Following Tropical Storm Irma, there were nearly 100,000 cubic yards of debris that needed to be collected. A simple and straightforward infographic was created to help show people how debris piles should be placed on the curb. It would be one that could be used by local media when reporting on debris collection, posted and shared on social media, and handed out to people who had questions.
